Liquor Runners in Fatal Fight Near Joliet

BOOTLEGGERS IN GUN FIGHT DURING NIGHT

Several Innocent Ones Wounded by Shots from Shotguns

By Associated Press Leased Wire
Chicago, Dec. 1.—One man is dead in Joliet, another seriously wounded and a Chicago man and his wife and their small daughter were wounded in a beer runners' battle early today near Lemont, Illinois, the third similar shooting in that neighborhood within a year. Three beer trucks and two automobiles filled with men are believed to have been involved.

Besides two men, one of whom, Tom Keene, died in a Joliet hospital, Mrs. Vicla Triebull, her husband, Erwin, Sr., and their daughter, Jane, 2, were wounded by buckshot.

The Triebulls and their two children and Robert Brown, a friend were returning home from a visit in Streator. Their automobile broke down in Morris and the driver of a furniture truck agreed to tow them into Chicago.

Shortly after passing Willow Springs, Triebull said, two trucks loaded with beer barrels, with an automobile following each, passed. It was so dark, he said, he could not see how many men were in the cars.

Innocent Folks Hurt
When approaching Lemont, he said, his car in tow of the furniture truck, came on the two beer trucks which had stalled. There was a third truck moving ahead of the other two, he said, and just as the Triebull car was being pulled alongside the two trucks, who summoned a physician, Lemont police took Keene and Egan to St. Joseph's hospital in Joliet.

Police believe the shooting marks a resumption of the beer war which reached its crest in September when three men were assassinated in Chicago.

THROWN FROM AUTO
By Associated Press Leased Wire
Joliet, Ill., Dec. 1.—Tom Keene died in St. Joseph's hospital at 5 o'clock this morning from wounds received in a bootleggers' pitched battle on the Joliet-Chicago road early this morning.

His body was riddled with iron slugs from a sawed-off shotgun. His companion, whose name, according to hospital attaches, is Egan, is in a serious condition, a half dozen iron slugs in his legs, his body slashed and cut.

Egan and Keene, according to the story obtained by police were driving a truck to Chicago when a touring car containing six men drove along side and ordered them to halt. The men in the touring car then dragged Keene and Egan into their machine and assigned two of their own number to the truck.

The touring car then started toward Chicago at high speed. While the auto was going forty miles an hour Egan and Keene were shot at with sawed-off shotguns at close range. Then their bodies were thrown from the machine.

Signboard Ads Now Illegal in Minnesota—Torn Down

St. Paul, Dec. 1.—(By The Associated Press)—Minnesota's new law passed by the last legislature, prohibiting all advertising signs on trunk highways on the state highway, went into effect today. Thousands of signs were being removed under instructions from C. M. Babcock, state highway commissioner. The orders cover all displays, inside and in most cases on fences along trunk routes. Only signs expressly excepted by the law are to be left.

The advertising torn down will be piled up at the roadside and the owners have ten days in which to claim them. Then they are to be destroyed.

U. S. REFUSES TO FALL FOR NEW BID REPARATION QUIZ

Any Attempt to Limit Inquiry is Bar to U. S. Assistance

By Associated Press Leased Wire
Washington, Dec. 1.—The American government still is unwilling to participate in a restricted inquiry into German finances, and has so informed J. A. Logan, American observer with the reparations commission in Paris. The communication outlining the government's position was sent to Col. Logan after he had informed the state department that the reparations commission favored American membership on the two committees created by it to investigate and report on German finances.

These exchanges are described in diplomatic parlance, however, as "purely informal" and officials said so far no formal invitation for American participation had been received. For that reason state department spokesmen refrained from discussing Paris dispatches.

Whatever the decision regarding American acceptance or rejection of a formal invitation, it is not expected that the United States government itself would participate in the work of the two committees. The only question involved, in the view of officials, is whether the government would sponsor or discourage participation by private citizens.

Paris, Dec. 1.—(By The Associated Press)—An invitation to the United States to appoint members of each of the two committees which are to investigate German finances has been forwarded to Washington by Col. James A. Logan on behalf of the reparations commission.

According to information in reparations circles the principal reason why the door was left open for America to be represented was that the French, British, Italian and Belgian governments were agreed that American money would be essential to any reasonable plan for restoration of the German financial system.

The fundamental reason for the anxiety to have American assistance, it is pointed out, is that any plan to restore finances of the German republic must include advance of a large sum, certainly $500,000,000, at the minimum. This amount would be raised at the various money markets of the world by public subscription and not be provided by the allied governments. The idea expressed is that if American finance were not represented on the committees, the American investing public would not have the same confidence in the conclusions reached.

Massey said he obtained the cargo in La Salle and that it was enroute to Joliet.

PROGRESSIVE REPUBLICANS MAKE THREATS

Delay in Organization of Congress is Seen in Their Move

By Associated Press Leased Wire
Washington, Dec. 1.—All members of the senate progressive bloc absent themselves today from the republican senate conference when the party organization was speedily effected by the reelection of Senator Lodge of Massachusetts as leader.

House republicans planned to select Representative Longworth of Ohio, their leader and to re-nominate Speaker Gillett despite insistence of progressives that they would seek to prevent election of Mr. Gillett, thereby delaying organization of the house, if their demands for recognition are turned down.

The question of the election of a president of the senate did not come before the conference, which adhered to the plan to proceed on the assumption that Senator Cummins of Iowa retains his office as president pro tem without a formal election.

Senator Curtis of Kansas, was re-elected vice chairman of the conference and party whip and Senator Wadsworth of New York, re-elected secretary. Senator Lodge, was authorized to appoint a committee on committees.

Liberalization of senate committees is the present aim of the progressive bloc, according to its leaders. They say they are making no threats, but that their attitude with respect to a senate fight over organization will be governed in the main by the assignments to be made by the committees on committees.

Claim Gillett's Defeat
A voting strength of 21—more than enough to block the reelection of Speaker Gillett by the regular republican organization of the house—was claimed by leaders of the progressive bloc.

Representative Nelson of Wisconsin, chairman of the bloc, declared 21 representatives had indicated they would not support the speaker unless the progressive bloc's demands for concessions are granted. That number would be sufficient to prevent Mr. Gillett's election if the democrats voted solidly for the democratic candidate for speaker.

It was assumed, however, that after the republican conference some move would be made for an agreement to prevent delay. Under present plans the election would be held Tuesday and President Coolidge would appear Wednesday to deliver his message. Unless a compromise can be reached, there is a prospect that congress next will be prevented from making a quick start, but that the President's message will be delayed.

ILL. NORTHERN GETS ANOTHER BIG SUBSIDY

United and Wisconsin Utilities Concerns are Acquired

The Middle West Utilities company has acquired the entire outstanding common capital stock of the United Utilities company, an Illinois corporation serving 12 communities in northwestern Illinois centering around Lena, Ill.

The United Utilities company owns all of the bonds and the entire common capital stock of the Wisconsin Utilities company, a Wisconsin corporation serving 19 communities in central Wisconsin. The gross earnings of the two companies for the year will be $300,000.

The communities served by these two utility companies are interconnected by means of a 33,000 volt high tension transmission line extending from Monroe, Wis., in a southwesterly direction to Martintown and thence south through Lena to Lanark, Ill.

There is now being constructed a 33,000 volt transmission line from Orfordville, Wis., to Monroe and a similar line from Freeport, Ill., to Lena. When these lines are completed, the properties of the Illinois Northern Utilities company and those now served by the United Utilities and Wisconsin Utilities companies will be interconnected with the properties owned and operated by the several subsidiary companies of the North West Utilities company and all the companies involved will thereafter be able to avail themselves of the interchange of hydro-electric and steam generated energy. This interchange of energy will bring about a marked improvement of service, effect substantial production and distributed economies and provide additional capacity needed to adequately care for the growing loads in the area served by the high voltage transmission system of the respective companies.

MONROE DOCTRINE STILL IN EFFECT

SAYS SEC. HUGHES Defines America's Attitude in Address at Philadelphia

By Associated Press Leased Wire
Philadelphia, Dec. 1.—Defense of the Monroe Doctrine and endorsement of the administration's policy of isolation marked the address last night of Secretary Hughes before a joint meeting of the American Academy of Political and Social Science and the Philadelphia Forum in observance of the centenary of the doctrine. He said he was opposed to any policy of aggression or intervention and declared the Monroe Doctrine accorded entirely with America's foreign policy.

"With respect to Europe," he said, "our policy has continued to be in the phrase of Jefferson: 'Peace, commerce and honest friendship with all nations; entangling alliances with none.'"

"Generally, our policies toward Europe may thus be summarized: We are still opposed to alliances. We refuse to commit ourselves in advance with respect to the employment of the power of the United States in unknown contingencies. We reserve our judgment to act upon occasion as our sense of duty permits. We are opposed to discrimination against our nationals. We ask fair and equal opportunities in mandated territories as they were acquired by the allies through our aid. We desire to cooperate according to our historic policy in the peaceful settlement of international disputes which embraces the policy of judicial settlement of such questions as are justiciable."

FORMALDEHYDE USING FARMER TO FACE COURT

State Will Prosecute Man Who Admits His Guilt

By Associated Press Leased Wire
Galesburg, Ill., Dec. 1.—A prominent dairyman living near Bushnell, Illinois, has admitted to state food department officials that he put formaldehyde in his cream to keep it sweet, according to J. K. Smith, Chicago, chemist from the state food division, and Alex Peterson, Galesburg, a state inspector. Tests conducted by the officials showed that the preservative had been used, the two men said, and when confronted with the evidence, the Bushnell man admitted his guilt, they stated. The cream was sold to Galesburg restaurant men, who were unaware of its poisonous content.

The samples are to be taken to Chicago Sunday and the state division will prosecute the dairyman, according to Mr. Smith.

It has been a number of years since state officials have secured conclusive evidence that preservatives were being used in cream, Mr. Smith said. Formaldehyde is used as a preservative in embalming the dead. Used in dairy products, it serves to keep them fresh for a much longer period, according to the state experts, but its presence is easily detected by chemical tests.

Cashed His "Gold" Piece; Trouble Followed for Jas. Raney

Thanksgiving morning, James Raney, colored, stepped into a business place on Dementtown avenue, took from his watch chain a $20 gold piece used as a charm. "I am hard up," declared Raney, "will you give me the cash for this?" Looking the charm over, the merchant decided it was all right, so handed the colored man twenty dollars in currency. After making a closer examination of the $20 gold piece, he found it to be composed of lead. Then he got busy. Deputy Sheriff William Rose was asked to get Raney, and soon had the man in custody. Raney informed the deputy sheriff that he won the piece playing craps in Mason City, Ia., and he did not know it was counterfeit. Raney called up a friend and the friend agreed to make good to the merchant. This was done. States Attorney Keller then ordered the man released.

Springfield, Ill., Dec. 1.—Governor Small early today granted requisition papers for the return of John P. Looney wanted at Rock Island and now held at Albuquerque, N. M., at the request of C. H. Thode, deputy sheriff, of Rock Island, who immediately started for New Mexico.

In addition to the Illinois state indictments, Looney is charged with violation of the Dyer Act against interstate traffic in stolen automobiles. Federal Attorney G. R. Craig announced application would be made in the federal court for his removal to Illinois. A hearing, he said, probably will be held Monday.

By Associated Press Leased Wire
Albuquerque, N. M., Dec. 1.—John P. Looney, removed from the county jail today to Santa Fe, faces the prospect of concurrent legal battles with federal officials and Illinois state officials both groups attempting to bring about his return to Rock Island, Ill. Looney, where he is charged with murder and several lesser offenses as a result of an investigation of vice and gambling conditions in 1922.

Word was received from Springfield, Illinois, that Governor Small had issued requisition papers for Looney's return to C. H. Thode, deputy sheriff at Rock Island who started for New Mexico.

This is a good move on the part of the state, as it will give Vickery more space for repairs, storage and supplies and give Mr. Watts his full time to devote to the sales of his cars.

SAYS ORDER'S HOME IS NOT HELD AS BAIT

Answers Charges Filed in Des Moines, Iowa Late Friday

By Associated Press Leased Wire
Des Moines, Dec. 1.—Allegations against officers and directors of the Brotherhood of American Yeomen, declared false and characterized as "just a little insubordination" in a statement today by G. N. Frink, president, and named a defendant.

The petitioners, holders of policies issued under the original founding plan, seek to enjoin the officers and directors from enforcing forfeiture of their membership or policies for failure to pay assessments at higher rates than heretofore and they contend that the society is attempting to change from fraternal to old line insurance and to penalize members who prefer to keep policies in the original form.

Mr. Frink declared no effort to change the form of policies had been made except insofar as the various state insurance commissioners have required.

Charges in the petition that the projected Yeomen children's home is a fiasco and that its establishment is being proposed only to acquire membership from the localities which seek the site of the orphanage, were denied by President Frink.

PEORIANS WORRY

The infunation petition charges that the Yeomen order did not contemplate building a home at this time.

Vickery's Garage Gets Added Room

Vickery Bros. proprietors of the Midway garage at the rear of Nachusa Tavern, have leased the ground floor of the Wattle garage at 113 Third street, for general storage and supplies and will use their present location at the rear of the Tavern exclusively for general repair work, which has grown to such an extent that additional floor space was necessary. All business will be conducted from the office at 113 Third St.

Mr. Watts, who has the agency for the Paige and Jewett cars and Republic trucks, will retain the show room and upper floor at his present location, 113 Third St., for the display and sale of the above cars, and hereafter will devote all his time to their sales in this territory.

This is a good move on the part of the firm, as it will give Vickery more space for repairs, storage and supplies and give Mr. Watts his full time to devote to the sales of his cars.

Today's Market Report

Wheat Firm, Corn Unsettled at Close

By Associated Press Leased Wire
Chicago, Dec. 1.—Wheat scored a material advance today during early dealings. There was a noticeable lack of the selling which has depressed the market and deliveries on December contracts were unexpectedly small. As a result bear speculators made haste to reverse their position and the market quickly advanced. The opening which ranged from 1/4 to 1/2 higher, Dec. 1.02 1/4 and May 1.08 1/4 was followed by further gains that lifted Dec. nearly 2c above yesterday's finish.

Subsequently slight further gains took place. The close was firm 1 1/4 to 1 1/2 net higher, Dec. 1.04 1/4 and May 1.09 1/4.

Scarcity of corn offerings gave firmness to corn. After opening unchanged to 1/4 higher, May 74 3/4 to 75 1/4 corn showed upturns all around.

Oats started at a shade off to 1/4 advance May 44 1/4 to 45 1/4. Later all months were higher.

Later the corn advance was checked by eastern selling of May. The close was unsettled 1/4 to 1/2 net higher, May 75 1/4 to 76 1/4.

Weekly Grain Review.

By Associated Press Leased Wire
Chicago, Dec. 1.—With traders backing away from actual deliveries in settlement of December contracts, wheat this week has shown some tendency to reach lower levels. Compared with a week ago, wheat this morning varied from unchanged to 1/16 to 1/8 down, with corn at 1/4 to 1/8 up, oats showing 1/4 to 1/8 up and provisions ranging from 25c decline to an equal advance.

Increasing visible stocks of wheat made buyers wary, the visible supply having enlarged to 75,000,000 bushels, an amount more than double that a year ago.

A decided increase of the Canadian visible supply also was noted and bearish sentiment was further emphasized by Washington advices that the administration was opposing new schemes of government aid to finance American exports to Germany. Meanwhile domestic wheat shipments from the United States continued to dwindle.

Sudden falling off in rural offerings gave corn a sharp rally from recent severe declines. Oats hardened with corn.

In provisions, the effect of big arrivals of hogs was more or less offset by talk of a shortage of hog supplies.

Butter Market.

By Associated Press Leased Wire
Chicago, Dec. 1.—Prices advanced at all the principal butter markets during the week, immediate supply and demand being, except Boston, controlling factors. Dealers had little difficulty in keeping fresh receipts moving and withdrawals from cold storage were about one and one-half millions pounds lighter than a year ago.

The market was described as constant at the low point of the season. An early increase was expected but it was not thought that his would be large. Since prices are comparatively high, few operators expect radical advances.

Range and closing prices wholesale, $2 score butter during the week:

Chicago 1c higher at 61 1/2; New York 1c higher at 63 1/2.

THE LADY OF THE LAMBS—

She walks—the lady of my delight—
A shepherdess of sheep.
Her flocks are thoughts. She keeps them white;
She guards them from the steep.
She feeds them on the fragrant height
And folds them in for sleep.

She roams maternal hills and bright,
Dark valleys safe and deep.
Her dreams are innocent at night,
The cheekiest stars may peep.
She walks—the lady of my delight—
A shepherdess of sheep.
She holds her little thoughts in sight,
Though gay they run and leap.
She is so circumspect and right;
She has her soul to keep.
She walks—the lady of my delight—
A shepherdess of sheep.

HOUSEHOLD SUGGESTIONS—

Iron Stand.
Use a clean brick for an iron stand when ironing. It will retain heat much longer than the usual open stands.

For Pickling.

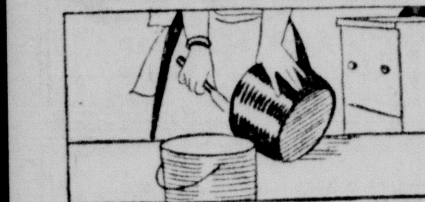

The vinegar used for pickling should always be boiled beforehand.

Air Cleaning.

Lint on the working parts of the sewing machine may be easily blown out with a bicycle pump.

Spatula Handy.

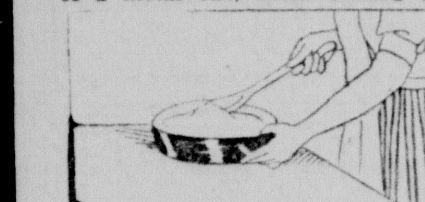

A palette knife or spatula is an excellent tool for scraping pots and pans instead of dulling your sharp knives. It may also be used for turning fried foods.

Wooden Spoon.

If you use a wooden spoon, instead of a metal one, when beating your cake dough, you will find it less tiring and it will leave no black marks on your hand.

SISTER Mary's KITCHEN

BY SISTER MARY

(Unless otherwise stated, each recipe is intended to be sufficient for four persons.)

FRUIT CAKES

While baking the Christmas fruit cake for yourself why not make enough to include in the Christmas box that must be sent to some member of the family away from home? Home-made cake at the holiday season has a strong appeal to persons not at home.

Brandy always was considered necessary in fruit cakes to make them keep and ripen. Although the brandy had nothing to do with the "keeping" it did aid in the "ripening." There is no substitute that will give the flavor to a fruit cake that the continued dampening with brandy imparted. However, strong coffee and grape juice used in fruit cake in place of milk will make a moist, delicious cake that will keep indefinitely.

Long slow baking insures good keeping. Fruit cake is made with or without eggs. The cake with eggs is of course richer than the one without. Old-fashioned pork cake requires neither butter nor eggs, but keeps well and is moist and delicious. The more fruit and nuts in the cake the better.

Pork Cake

One pound fat salt pork, 2 cups boiling water, 2 cups brown sugar, 1 cup molasses, 12 tablespoons each cloves and nutmeg, 12 tablespoons cinnamon, 1 pound raisins, 1 pound currants, 1/2 pound citron, 2 cups nut meats, 4 tablespoons strong cold coffee, 3 teaspoons baking powder, 1/2 teaspoon vanilla.

Remove rind and any bits of lean meat from salt pork. Chop very fine and pour over boiling water. Mix well and let stand until lukewarm. Stone raisins. Clean and dry currants. Shred citron. Mix fruit with one cup flour. Mix and sift remaining flour with baking powder and soda. Add fruit and spices to sugar and molasses combined with fat and water. Add coffee and vanilla. Mix well and stir in flour and nuts. Mix thoroughly. Be sure the flour is evenly mixed through the whole mixture. Turn into a large pan lined with buttered paper and bake in a slow oven two and one-half hours.

This is a cheap, delicious cake well worth baking. More fruit and nuts can be added if wanted. The ingredients for a fruit cake should be weighed. Eggs vary in size different brands of flour vary in weight per cup and brown sugar is as variable. But as comparatively few housekeepers indulge in kitchen scales this recipe is changed from pounds to cups.

Fruit Cake

Two cups butter, 2 2/3 cups light brown sugar, 9 large eggs, 4 cups pastry flour or 3 1/2 cups bread flour (both measured after sifting once), 1/2 cup strong cold coffee, 2 pounds raisins, 2 pounds currants, 1/2 pound candied cherries, 1 pound citron, 1/2 pound candied orange peel, 1/2 pound candied lemon peel, 1/2 pound or 2 cups blanched and chopped almonds, 2 tablespoons cinnamon, 1 tablespoon cloves, 1 nutmeg, 1 1/2 teaspoons soda, 1 tablespoon vanilla.

Cream butter and slowly beat in sugar. Separate yolks from whites of eggs and beat yolks until thick and lemon colored and whites until stiff and dry. Add to first mixture. The raisins should be seeded and chopped, the currants cleaned and dried, the cherries cut in small pieces, the citron sliced thin and shredded and the candied peels cut in tiny pieces before the cake is mixed. Mix chopped fruits with one-half extra cup of flour. Add flour and coffee alternately to first mixture. Add prepared fruit and nuts, spices and vanilla. Dissolve soda in molasses and add the last thing. Mix the cake well after the addition of each ingredient. Turn in to well oiled and floured deep cake pans, cover with buttered paper and steam three hours and bake one and one-half hours in a slow oven. Or the cake is baked four hours in a very slow oven. The nutmeg of course is grated before using. You will like your fruit cake much better if it is steamed and baked rather than simply baked. The cake will be moist and

EXTREMES IN COAT SUITS

These are the two extremes of suit coats—both desirable. But beware of the unfashionable in between.

The short coat may have either a long rolling collar or a tailored notch collar. It is slightly shaped in at the waist, is double breasted, has long tight fitting sleeves without cuffs and may or may not have a pocket or two. This is the coat featured in the smart imported woollens—plaids, stripes, plain materials, sometimes its long rolling collar of fur.

The other coat is the type that accompanies the handsome costume suit. It covers either one-piece dress or one of the new very long blouses and the coat must come to the knee or below. It has either a high collar or a long shawl collar and fastens on the side. This, too, may be fur trimmed and usually is.

Between these two types you may make your choice. If you are fashion wise you'll hunt no farther.

PARTY BAGS

The piece bag may yield up the supplies for the party bags sketched here. The one at the left is of turquoise satin lined with peach, bound with silver ribbon. Patches of the peach ribbon are embroidered in with turquoise chenille. Velvet ribbon tacked down with silver thread makes the leaves.

A two-stripe satin ribbon in dark and light green makes the other bag that is trimmed with calloped ombre ribbons to stimulate nasturtiums. Silver ribbon is used for the border and handles.

A FLOOD OF MONEY.

The Sterling Gazette carries an editorial which is entirely applicable to Dixon and contains some pertinent facts. It deals with the Loan and Building Association there, an institution similar to the one in Dixon. Dixon's, Loan and Building Association works quietly and conservatively, for its first interest is to its stockholders, but it has done more than any other one agency, we believe, to promote the growth and prosperity of Dixon to bring independence and prosperity to individual citizens. It deserves recognition of the credit due and is worthy of the greatest public confidence and support. The editor of the Sterling Gazette says:

Enough "little drops of water" make a mighty flood, when gathered, accumulated, together. The Building and Loan Association, when it gets to functioning properly induces many people who have not previously been saving their money to begin saving systematically—so much a week or a month.
If five hundred people in the Twin Cities who have not been making any special effort to save money were to begin $2 a week each by taking stock in the Building and Loan Association, that would raise $1,000 each week. The individual two dollar bill would not go far toward buying a home for any one, but $1,000 would make a good payment on two or three homes. There are a thousand people who waste $1 a week in the Twin Cities—by that we mean spend that money on things they do not need. That would be $2,000 if accumulated into one fund in the Building and Loan. It would make a flood of money. That would make payments of $500 each on four homes a week, or over $300 each on six homes. That would make possible the purchase of from one to two hundred homes in a year.

The men and women able to purchase and live in their own home, have a mighty different outlook on life. They improve their property. They are a contented and prosperous type—the type that makes cities grow and increase in substance and development. That would be gathering a flood of money devoted to building up the city. A live, properly conducted, building and loan association, is one of the best business builders in a community. It is a help to the men who desire to own their own homes, and a prosperity builder for the community. Having lived long in a city enjoying the benefits of a building and loan association, conducted by live wire officials and directors, we know, have seen and received the benefits of such an organization.

We only hope the present campaign will put some new vitality into our local association, and expand it until it will prove a benefit not only to every man and woman who desires to own their own home, but to every line of business in the city. Because that is exactly what a live building and loan association, functioning properly, gathering in hundreds or thousands of dollars weekly, heretofore spent foolishly, thrown at the birds as it were, brings to every community.
By saving the flood of money, wasted or foolishly spent in every community on useless things, in the Twin Cities, the growth and expansion, development and beautifying of the residential sections would keep pace with the development the past year in other lines.

DOING THE SHOPPING.

If human nature were not what it is, the Christmas season might not be one of rush and worry over what to buy, and sales forces in stores would not be rushed to exhaustion in the two or three weeks before the event.
If people did their shopping when it could be done under the least congested conditions, it might extend over months instead of weeks, and it would be not less seasonable.

However, none but the exceptional person thinks of doing shopping until it can not be put off any longer. Then it becomes an ordeal and is so strenuous that it tends to rob the season of the "cheer and good will" that attach to its sentimentality. The "good will" might actually pervade the shoppers were they not overworked trying to find what they want and struggling to get it. Yet it would not be Christmas for a lot of people were it otherwise. They have become so accustomed to waiting and then making a hurry-up job of it that they would not feel right were it done betimes.

Human nature is a peculiar thing despite the fact that all of us have it. It wouldn't be human nature if it wasn't odd. If we did everything in a reasonable and sane way we would not be human beings. We would be super-human and that is too much to expect.
It is the prerogative of human being to do as they please and of course must of us please to delay as long as we can the doing of what we can not avoid. There may be those who are forehanded in Christmas shopping, but they are rare, and so different from the mass that they are odd too.

By the way, we must do our shopping pretty soon.

NO. 9—LUMPTY TY, LUMPTY

"Humpty Dumpty," said the Riddle Lady, "you must not get offended at my new riddle."

"Humpty Dumpty," said the Riddle Lady, "you must not get offended at my new riddle. It isn't about you at all. It just sounds as though it was. It's called Lumpty Ty, Lumpty, and the answer is not an egg. It's something entirely different and cannot be eaten. Is everybody ready?"

"Yes!" shouted all the Riddle Land people, for every one was anxious to see who would get the prize today. The Twins decided not to guess too hard, for already, since coming to Riddle Land, they had guessed most of the answers.

"Well, then here it is," smiled the Riddle Lady. "Put on your thinking caps:

"Lumpty Ty, Lumpty's up in the air. Sometimes he's round, sometimes he's square. Sometimes thin, but often thick. His suit is stone and trimmed with brick."

"Lumpty Ty, Lumpty's breath is hot. Perhaps it's fever, but I think not. Summer's heat nor winter's chill, Never caused Lumpty a doctor bill."

HOPELESS

(The Bridge Friend's Lament)

BY BERTON DRALEY

Oh, she is young and slender,
And pretty as a peach;
Her smile is warm and tender,
And gracious is her speech.
Few girls are any fairer,
Yet my affection slumps;
I can't forgive this error,
She won't get out her Trumps!

Sweet, kind and altruistic,
Bright, sensible and sane,
She's gay and optimistic
And has a clever brain.
She's thrifty, wise and canny
And gives my heart the thumps.
But this thing gets my nanny,
She won't get out the Trumps!

She'd be a wife and mother
To make a fellow proud,
There isn't any other
Can match her in the crowd.
There's no one any truer,
But—here's the fact that stumps,
(Oh, Bridge Friends, dare I woo her?)
She WON'T get out the Trumps!

LETTER FROM LESLIE PRESCOTT
CONTINUED

"I don't mean anything in particular," said Ruth evasively, "except that every man has to do this when his wife has money of her own. You know very well, my dear, that if you had an assured income without going back to your father, you would tell Jack all about your pearls and if he didn't like it you would say, 'I'll take my baby and get out.'"

"Speaking of babies, Leslie, did you ask Jack to go with us to that moving picture tonight?"

"Yes, but he said he thought he would be too busy to go."

"Well, you tell him for me, Leslie, that because of the coincidence of little Jack being left before your door and Paula Perier's picture, which has to do with a child being left at the door of two young people, all Albany is agog with gossip."

"What kind of gossip, Ruth?" What are they saying?"

"Just what Mrs. Smithson intimated to you. That the child is John's."

NEW ORLEANS
BY MASON DIXON

NEA Service Writer

New Orleans—New Orleans is the home of the first jazz strike of history. The ancient city's Tango Belt opened the autumn season with many new cabarets and with a hectic demand for jazz. Jazz players, jazz singers, jazz dancers were worked to a fare-you-well, night after night, until they struck last week. Struck for higher pay and a three-platoon shift system. They won. Now the Tango Belt responds to the slinking blare of the old-time jazz. And the jazz babies are happy.

Achmed Saik, Turk, came to America three months ago. He took residence in New Orleans on Manuel street, a little street on the outskirts. In the local newspapers lately has been much agitation about renaming some New Orleans streets for famous figures in her two centuries of history.
Somebody explained it to Achmed.
He approved. Then a drayage company complained to City Commissioner Paul Maloney that something was wrong out on Manuel street. Commissioner Maloney investigated. He found that Achmed had torn down the street signs that proclaimed it Manuel street, and had erected at his own expense signs which proclaimed the thoroughfare Saik street.

The city commission gently but firmly told Achmed that a man's fellow citizens had to determine how famous he was. Now it is Manuel street again, and Achmed Saik mourns.

Robert Hayne Tarrant, New Orleans impresario, has a penchant for loud cravats. Rosa Ponselle, the singer, cured him. Rosa was in New Orleans this week. Tarrant met her at the train. In his arms was a mass of Royal Italian cerise dahlias. In his lapel another. His flaring bow club-bush was royal Italian cerise. Ponselle should feel touched, he thought.

"For the love of Mike," said the dramatic soprano prima donna of the Metropolitan Opera Company, as she lapped the Tarrant cravat. "Where did you get that necktie? Are you wearing it on a bet? Run along and get a quiet one before you call on me again. That cubist sunset makes you look like a tenor."

FATIGUE

How many times have you had to refuse invitations to go somewhere or do something you really wished to do, because you were too tired or fatigued?

Fatigue may be termed muscular postural or nervous. Muscles in action continued use pour into the circulation chemical substances which strongly affect, by their stimulant action the respiratory nerve centers.
There is a direct connection between muscular action and nerve fatigue.

In addition to cell loss or waste by action of the muscles, there is also a complicated chemical waste production. By long continued or violent action this waste is thrown into the body circulation more rapidly than it is removed. In normal muscular action this so-called overloading is rarely apparent.

Loss of "pop", or fatigue through bad posture, is also of frequent occurrence. Careless, slovenly habits, or indifferent posture, bring this about. If the strain or pull is not too severe on the sacro-lumbar joints (base of spine) and reflex action through the spinal cord not retarded, this cause will be greatly reduced.

The splanchnic (abdominal) circulation is repressed by bad posture and cannot carry the waste fast enough. It clogs the blood outlet.
The nerves suffer and refuse to aid your muscles. Fatigue is the result.
Often drowsiness and general lassitude are from food disturbances, brought on by bad diet or overeating.
One must learn to avoid the excess of any one food element tending to this cause. It is not fatigue but bad diet. Do not eat heavy meals when fatigued.

To avoid fatigue requires no more than ordinary caution. The muscles must have relaxation and rest or both muscle and nerve will soon refuse to do your bidding. Relaxation is a great safeguard. Practice your resting powers. To do this plan some part of your busy day for a short vacation between activities.

Bathing is another means of avoiding fatigue. Perfect relaxation should be practiced to obtain the most good.
A cold bath or a spray, which should be alternated with hot, will prove most stimulating and will prevent fatigue if regularly taken.

Boy Editor Charges
His Help Stole His Paper Away from Him

Waukegan, Ill., Nov. 30.—Fifteen year old Richard Granville, youthful editor and owner of a weekly newspaper in Lake Bluff and son of the late Austin Granville, play wright, today charged he was "fired" by his employees who kidnapped his newspaper and had it printed in Chicago.
Hopping mad, the youthful editor was arranging in Waukegan for the printing of a 16 page paper.

Young Granville declares he is the owner and editor of "The Villager," but that Raymond E. Miller, associate editor, Gordon Miller, circulation manager, and John Pitt, advertising manager, carried away the copy and the advertising to Chicago and had the paper printed there. They left his name off the "mast head" and omitted his best "scoops" young Granville charges, and published what he called a mere "hand bill."

So he, alone, will run his paper he declares.

The Business Car That's
Also a Family Car

The extraordinary utility of the Buick five-passenger four-cylinder Touring Car makes this model particularly suited to serve the needs of business. Its rugged chassis and powerful valve-in-head engine insure uninterrupted service. Its proved Buick four-wheel brakes make this car more than ordinarily safe to

GIRL ARTIST, ARMS HELPLESS, PAINTS PICTURES OF BEAUTY WITH HER MOUTH

BY Josephine Van de Grift
NEA Service Staff Writer.
New York—Georgia Wilkinson, whose arms are twisted and helpless, a subject for the pity of many, is an artist whose paintings of objects of beauty have attracted unusual attention.

She paints with her mouth. Holding the brush in her teeth, Georgia reproduces the exquisite features of beautiful girls, the cunningness of babies, the poise of statesmen, the physical prowess of prize fighters and the alertness of thoroughbred horses.

In her dingy studio apartment at 729 Eighth avenue, just a couple of blocks from "Fantastic Broadway," Georgia does her outstanding work in her most unique manner.

Pictures galore—her own work—brighten the otherwise unbearable surroundings.

She is happy. "Unhappy? Not a bit of it. 'I wouldn't change places with anybody in the world,' says Georgia. Her brown eyes shine when she says it.

Lack of it all lies a story of mother love and devotion and heartache and disillusionment.

There were six children in the Wilkinson family but best of all Mother Wilkinson loved her little helpless daughter. When the other children went to school Georgia learned to hold a state pencil in her teeth. Her first drawing was made on a paper torn from a cracker box.

Years passed. The father who had been a wealthy lumberman, died. War came and scattered the sons. Mother Wilkinson took Georgia, a few thousand dollars and came to New York to have Georgia's art talents fostered. But one school said she was too old. Another said she would distract the attention of the other students. Their little hoard of money dwindled.

There came a time when Georgia performed her work before the staring crowds in museums. Her earnings were all that held the family together.

Sombody discovered that Georgia's beautiful ladies were very much like the other beautiful ladies that appear on magazine covers. Mother Wilkinson took a portfolio of Georgia's drawings and went from office to office. Had all the magazines, it seemed, had artists.

An Angel Appears. Then a wealthy man recognized Georgia's talents and gave her a commission to paint a portrait of Steinmetz. The picture was to be a gift to the great electrical wizard who, a hunchback, had himself risen over insuperable obstacles. Steinmetz died.

President Coolidge will deliver an address by radio Monday night. He will speak on the plan to establish a memorial to his predecessor in office, W. G. Harding.

The president will speak for about ten minutes, beginning at 8:30 eastern time and his remarks will be broadcast from Washington, New York and Providence and relayed from stations at Chicago, St. Louis and Dallas. The address will be a feature of the opening of Harding memorial week.

President Coolidge has accepted the invitation of President E. F. McDonald of the National Association of Broadcasters and will read his messages over radio. This means that an audience of several millions will hear the voice of the nation's chief executive instead of a few as heretofore.

President Coolidge's acceptance was sent to Mr. McDonald through Secretary Siemp, who wrote as follows: "In the president's behalf I want to express the sincerest thanks for your letter of Nov. 5.

"In the short time I have been connected with the executive establishment, I have come to realize as never before the tremendous burden that a president has to bear, and the fact that it is the sort of burden that is well nigh impossible to share even with the most willing and capable of coadjutors.

"You have presented a most interesting suggestion as to one possibility of helping to relieve him of some of his obligations. Your suggestion will receive the fullest and most sympathetic attention, and you may be assured will be kept in mind whenever an opportunity presents whereby we may avail ourselves of it.

Mr. McDonald, in making his proposal, declared that all the large broadcasting stations which are associated in a national cooperative body would pledge to transmit his messages and public utterances to every nook and corner of the country.

BALLOON TIRES SMOOTH ROUGH ROADS

Lower Air Pressure Supplies Cushioning Effect to Riding

By NEA Service.

Akron, Ohio.—If you have ever run your tires low to cushion your body against road bumps, you will appreciate the latest tire innovation which some automobile manufacturers have already adopted.

It is the air-cushion, or balloon tire. This is a tire with large cross section, thin side walls and containing low air pressure. Its purpose is to produce better riding comfort without entailing a loss in any of the advantages already experienced in auto driving.

More than year ago, this problem was taken in hand by the tire engineers of this city, with James E. Hale of the Firestone company one of the pioneers. They recognized that greater cushioning and protection against vibrations demanded lower air pressure. To have lower air pressure, and still support the same weight, required greater air chambers. Hence the larger cross section.

A 33 by 5 tire, for instance, is increased to a cross section of 7.3 inches. And the original pressure of 55 pounds is decreased to 35 pounds, to carry the same weight.

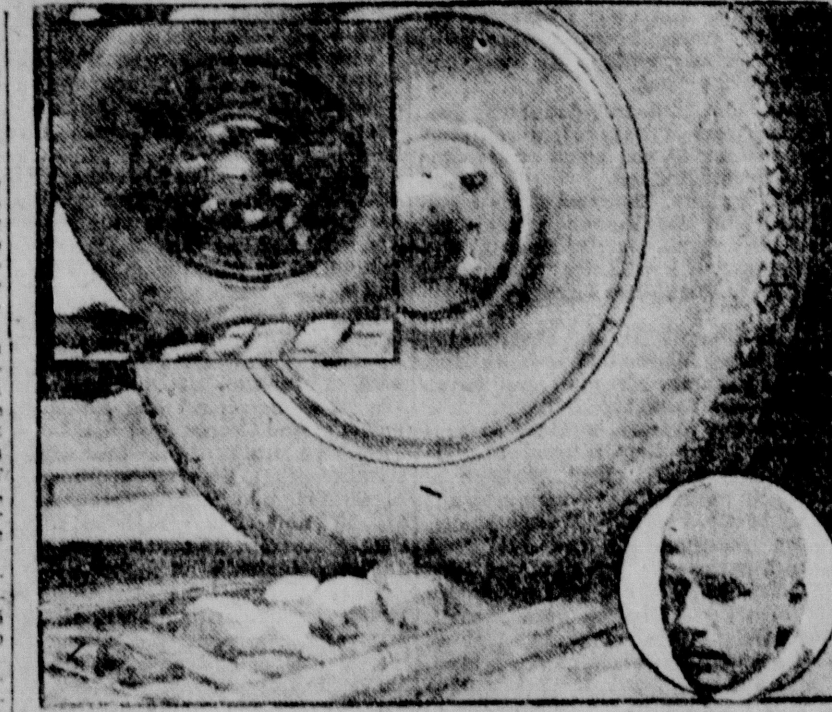

But the lower air pressure demanded greater flexibility of the tire carcass, especially the side walls, because of the greater road contact. The many-ply cord tire of today would be too stiff and would crack under such requirements.

Advantages of Cords. At the same time, it was recognized, lower air pressure lowered the bursting stresses on the carcass. Therefore a thinner wall with less plies of fabric was possible.

That was just what was wanted to produce greater flexibility and greater flexibility and greater cushioning effect. Thus, the thin-walled, low-pressure, largest section tire is just as durable as the more heavily constructed cord tire.

Hale is enthusiastic over the advantages the new tire affords. Because there is no necessity to slacken down for road bumps or ruts, he says, a higher average speed is practical with this than with the older form of tire.

Road surface irregularities are toned down and almost obliterated," he explains. "Everything is cushioned so that there are no sharp shocks or jolts and one does not have to watch the road to put his body in a tense condition to get over the rough spots nor be worried about being tossed up from the seat. He does not have to pick out all the good places in a rough road because it makes little difference whether he takes them or not."

Fuel Costs No Higher. "Chuck holes are not near so dangerous, the sharp jolt being softened because the wheels are brought more gradually to rest and the action absorbed. As for fuel consumption, tests have shown that the balloon tires take no more, if not less, than regular tires."

"Naturally, steering is affected to a degree at very low speeds, but under other conditions the new tires actually favor better control. In crossing street car tracks at a near-parallel angle there is no deflection; the reaction on the steering wheel is much less pronounced; while the soft, wide contact of the tire tends to keep them true without effort."

Better control is also noticeable under difficult traffic conditions. The larger area of tread contact with the road, combined with the greatly increased lineal total of non-skid edges, gives excellent non-skid and traction results. In rough going this is particularly true because there is contact at all times, the tire being so flexible that it rolls and folds over rough surfaces maintaining a uniformly larger area of contact."

BILLY EVANS EXPECTS FRANK CHANCE AND WHITE SOX TO MAKE TROUBLE FOR THE REST

By BILLY EVANS

Is Frank Chance a great manager? Did he deserve the title of "peerless leader," conferred on him when he was making baseball history with the famous Chicago Cubs?

Will he make the Chicago White Sox a factor in the American League race?

These and scores of other similar questions have been hurled at me since the announcement was made that Frank Chance was to succeed Kid Gleason as manager of the Chicago White Sox.

Before going further into the question of Frank Chance, I want to say that I keenly regret the passing of Kid Gleason from the ranks of the American League.

Kid Gleason was a most capable leader. Until this year he did mightily well with the White Sox. The failure of the Sox this year was just one of those things that happen every now and then in baseball. The Sox are not a seventh place ball club. That is where the team finished in 1923, but the fault was not Gleason's.

Manager Must Have Help. Frank Chance is a great manager, but a great manager alone cannot win ball games. The manager can direct the play but the men on the field must put into execution his plan of battle.

John McGraw was a "master mind" in 1921 and 1922 when the Giants ran rough-shod over the Yankees in the world series. McGraw was pictured as directing every ball pitched. He had a seventh place ball club. That is where the team finished in 1923, but the fault was not McGraw's.

SPECIAL SERVICE OF SONG ROCHELLE FEATURE THURSDAY

Presbyterian Choir in Great Service There Thanksgiving

Rochelle, Ill., Nov. 30.—The choir of the First Presbyterian church presented a delightfully artistic cantata, "Praise and Thanksgiving," by C. B. Adams in the auditorium of the church, Thanksgiving day evening, Nov. 29th. This was the first public appearance of the full thirty-five piece choir in their surplises.

The chorus choir was conducted by Mrs. Katherine Diehl, with Mrs. S. W. Hoon as accompanist, assisted by Miss Alice Coppins, violinist, and Mrs. Eleanor Coppins Chapman, accompanist, both of Dixon.

The chorus is undoubtedly the best organization ever assembled in the history of the church—a chorod body which won a distinctive triumph in Thursday's concert. The chorus has volume, quality, excellence, besides a fine group of solo artists. This was evidenced by Mrs. J. Ralph Brown's sweet soprano, Mr. Benfang's resonant bass, Mrs. Diehl's excellent and strong soprano, the tenor of Mr. Edward Morgan, the bass of James Morgan, Mrs. Brundage's delightful contralto and Miss Nugent's fine soprano. Solo numbers rendered were: "God Shall Wipe Away Our Tears," Carl Roma, Mrs. Brown; solo and chorus.

"Oh Hear Us for Our Native Land," Mrs. Diehl; "Sing to the Lord," Edward Morgan; recitative and chorus; "The Mighty God," James Morgan; "Thanksgiving," Mrs. R. C. Brundage; "Grateful O Lord Am I," Carl Roma, Miss Nugent; "My Hope is in Thee," Mr. Benfang.

Miss Doris Tilton and Mr. Jewell rendered the duet, "O Lord, Our Lord." Miss Tilton possesses a fine well modulated voice with perfect enunciation, and Stuart Jewell is a young artist with a true infinitely sweet tenor always under perfect control.

Of equal delight were the quartet numbers: Prayer, "Dear Lord and Father of Mankind," Miss Marion Tilton, Mrs. Weeks, Mr. Olson, Mr. Benfang, and "The Lord is My Shepherd."

erd," Mrs. Masters, Mrs. Kittler, Mr. Fowler, Mr. Kingma; their voices blending in splendid tone, quality and harmony.

Miss Coppins, violinist, rendered the most difficult selections with ease, "Symphonie Espagnole," by Edouard Lalo; and the group, "Indian Lament," Dvorak-Kreisler; "Londonerry Air," Kreisler; and "Frangrance," Cecil Burleigh. Her efforts were warmly applauded and she graciously responded to encores.

"Onward Christian Soldiers," by the men's chorus of eleven voices, A. T. Hustler, James Morgan, F. J. Benfang, Stuart Jewell, Edward Morgan, Roy Fowler, E. L. Valle, Ernest Nefsted, A. E. Kingma, Bruce Haselton, and Norman Olson was a genuine treat. The martial and stirring piece appealed as only man's voices can.

The success of the cantata is due to the splendidly developed organization, the untiring efforts of Dr. E. L. Valle, the choir committee, the director, organist, and a full measure of praise should be meted out to the entire personnel without stint. This splendid offering should be repeated.

Thanksgiving day was appropriately observed in Rochelle.

Rev. Thomas R. Niven, pastor of the Presbyterian church, delivered the sermon at the union services of the churches in the Methodist church at 10 o'clock, taking his text from President Calvin Coolidge's proclamation. The sermon was a masterpiece.

NO. 9—THE WILDFLOWER WALTZ

ARTHUR MURRAY AND AILEEN MEEHAN ILLUSTRATING THE FIRST STEP IN THE NEW "WILDFLOWER WALTZ."

BY ARTHUR MURRAY
Director, National Institute of Social Dancing

The Wildflower waltz was not misnamed when one takes into consideration the carefree manner and abandon which characterizes this dance.

This new waltz is lively, yet conservative; it does not tire one out as did the old-fashioned waltz. It is undoubtedly one of the most fascinating dances we have had in several seasons.

Here's how it is done:

Man's Part

Step forward on the left foot and hold the weight on that foot for three beats of the music. While the weight is on the left foot, swing the right foot in front of you.

Take a long step back on the right foot, holding the weight on it for three counts. While the weight is on the right foot, swing the left foot backward.

After mastering the first two paragraphs above complete the step by taking two forward waltz movements totaling six counts.

Repeat the entire step. Step forward on the left and swing the right foot forward. Then step backward on the right and swing the left foot backward. Complete the step by taking two forward waltz movements.

Lady's Part

Read the man's part carefully.

Step backward with the right foot, holding the weight on that foot for three counts. At the same time swing the left foot backward.

Step forward with the left foot and hold the weight on that foot for three beats. At the same time swing the right foot as far forward as possible. Note that when you swing your foot forward, the feet are lifted slightly off the floor.

Complete the movement by doing two backward waltz movements totaling six counts.

Repeat the entire step.

Man's Part

Step forward on the left foot and hold the weight on that foot for three beats of the music. As you take this step, let the body swing forward and rise up and down on your left foot. (The right foot is brought up to the left but no weight is placed on the right foot.)

Take a long step backward with the right foot, rising up and down on the right and holding the weight on that foot for three counts. (The left foot is brought up to the right but no weight is placed on the left.)

Note that by stepping forward with the left foot and then stepping backward with the right, rising up and down on each step, you do a rocking movement. The body sways forward, then backward. Each step is given three beats of music.

To Complete It

The step is completed by taking two forward waltz movements beginning with the left foot. The forward waltz movements take six counts and you finish with the weight on your right foot.

Repeat the entire step. (Rock forward on left, rock backward on right, then take two forward waltz movements of six counts.)

Lady's Part

Step backward on the right foot and hold the weight on that foot for three counts. (At the same time draw the left foot up to the right without placing any weight on the left foot.)

Withdraw Plea for Writ for Zeidler

Edwardsville, Ill., Nov. 30.—(By the Associated Press)—The application for a writ of habeas corpus for Gus Zeidler, Governor Small's cook, was withdrawn today by D. H. Mudge, of counsel for Zeidler, a convicted bank robber.

Mr. Mudge is expected to make a statement later.

Zeidler's trial on a charge of assault with intent to kill, scheduled for Monday, was postponed until Dec. 17 at the request of William McNamara of Chicago, also of defense counsel who explained he had not had time to prepare his defense.

AMUSEMENTS

BLACKSTONE THEATRE

Glenn Hunter, who as Merton in "Merton of the Movies" at the Blackstone Theatre, has scored the success of his career, knew what it was to actually go hungry and without a place to sleep, just as does Merton in the play, and, like Merton, he finally rose to the place he now holds in the affections of theatergoers by persistence combined with ability to "make good" when opportunity offered. Mr. Hunter has also appeared in a number of movie productions, among them with Norma Talmadge, Constance Binney and Dorothy Gish.

When, in the third act of "Merton of the Movies," at the Blackstone Theatre, Glenn Hunter seats himself in the director's chair, to the horrified amazement of all the other participants in the scene, he is using a real movie director's chair. Moreover, a real movie camera is used in shooting the scene: real Kleig lights are used, with their intense greenish glare; the studio scenery set up to represent a room is in the drab colors required by screen lighting, with the trimming done in yellow in order to be transmuted into white on the films, and, as a final touch of realism, the cutting machine used in the next scene in Jeff Baird's office is the real thing used by movie producers. To top it off, Romaine Callender, playing the part of the movie director, gives a performance that is said to be an exact duplication of the manner of one of our most famous producers in the films.

A MATING IN THE WILD

RALPH STANTON

ONLY ALFRED A. KNOX HAS THE SERVICE

BEGIN HERE TODAY

Hubert Stane rescues Helen Yardley when her canoe travels toward dangerous waters. Together they start to walk the trail to the camp where Helen is staying with her uncle, a governor of the Hudson Bay Company. The camp is near a northern post of the company. Stane is a discharged convict.

A forest fire overtakes them and they flee from the flames. They settle in a cabin they find on the trail. Trooper Anderson of the N. W. M. P. comes to the cabin and Stane shows him a paper found by him in a book loaned to a former friend, Gerald Ainley.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY

The meal was finished without any further reference to the past, and after a smoke, Anderson threw on his furs and went outside. Presently he returned and announced his intention of going up the lake to the Indian encampment.

Stane looked at Helen, then he said: "We will accompany you, Anderson."

When Anderson had harnessed his dogs they started off, making directly up the lake, and within two hours sighted about half a score of winter teepees pitched near the shore, and with abutting woods on three sides of them. As they came into view, with the smoke of the fire curling upward in the still air, the policeman nodded.

"The end of a journey of two hundred miles; or the beginning of one that may take me into the Barrens, and up to the Arctic. Lord, what a life this is!"

He laughed as he spoke, and both those who heard him, knew that he found the life a good one, and was without regret for the choice he had made.

As they drew nearer the camp, two or three men, and perhaps a dozen women, with twice that number of children came from the teepees to look at them, and when the dogs came to a halt, one of the men stepped forward. He was an old man, and withered-looking, but with a light of cunning in his bleared eyes.

"What want," he asked. "Me, Chief George."

The policeman looked at the bent figure clothed in mangy-looking furs, with a dirty capote over all, and then gave a swift glance at his companions, the eyes nearest to them fluttering down in a slow wink. A second later he was addressing the chief in his own tongue.

"I come, from the Great White Chief, to take away one who is a slayer of women. It is said that he has refuge in thy lodges."

The Indian's dirty face gave no sign of any resentment. "There is no such man in my lodges."

"But I have heard there is, a man who is the son of thy sister, with a white father."

The old Indian looked as if considering the matter for a moment, then he said slowly, "My sister's son was here, but he departed four days ago."

"Whither went he?"

The Indian waved his hand northward. "Towards the Great Barrens. He took with him all our dogs."

"Done!" said the policeman with a quick glance at Stane. "It is certain there are no dogs here, or we should have heard or seen them."

He turned to the Indian again. "You heard that, Miss Yardley? Our exile is not yet over."

"Apparently not," agreed Helen smilingly.

Stane again gave his attention to the conversation between his friend and the Indian, but half a minute later, happening to glance at the girl, he surprised a look of intense interest on her face. She was looking towards a teepee that stood a little apart from the rest, and wondering what it was that interested her. Stane asked, "What is it, Miss Yardley? You seem to have found something very interesting."

Helen laughed a little confusedly. "It was only a girl's face at a tent-door. I was wondering whether the curiosity of my sex would bring her into the open or not."

Stane himself glanced at the teepee in question, the moose-hide flap of which was down. Apparently the girl inside had overcome her curiosity, and preferred the warmth of the teepee to the external cold. He grew absorbed in the conversation again, but Helen still watched the teepee; for the face she had seen was that of Miskodee, and she knew that the thought she had entertained as to the identity of the woman of mystery, who had fled from the neighborhood of the cabin, was the right one. Presently a mitted hand drew aside the tent-flap ever so small a way, and Helen smiled to herself.

Not till Stane addressed her did she take her eyes from the teepee. "Anderson's through," he said. "His man has gone northward; and ing towards a teepee that stood a little apart from the rest, and wondering what it was that interested her. Stane asked, "What is it, Miss Yardley? You seem to have found something very interesting."

HE POINTED TO THE WALL, WHERE AN ARROW QUIVERED.

as you heard, there are no dogs here. We shall have to go back to the cabin. Anderson tried to persuade the chief to send a couple of his young men with a message down to Fort Malsin, but the fellow says it is impossible in this weather to make the journey without dogs, which I dare say is true enough."

"Then," said the girl with a gay laugh, "we have a further respite."

"Respite!" he said wonderingly. "Yes—from civilization. I am not absolutely yearning for it yet."

She laughed again as she spoke, and Stane laughed with her, though he did not notice the glance she flashed at the closed teepee. Then Anderson turned abruptly from Chief George.

"I'm sorry," he said, "I have done what I could for you two, but this noble red man either won't or can't help you. I shall have to push on, but the first chance I get I'll send word on to Factor Rodwell. If only I could turn back—"

"Please don't worry about us, Mr. Anderson," interrupted Helen cheerfully. "We shall be all right."

"For my word, I believe you will, Miss Yardley," answered the policeman in admiration. He looked down the lake and then added: "No use my going back. It will only be time wasted. I will say goodbye here. Keep cheerful old man!" he said to Stane. "You'll work clear of that rotten business at Oxford yet. I feel it in my bones."

Helen moved a little away and the policeman lowered his voice, received while she was "on location" Thursday afternoon.

Miss Mansfield received the burns when a flimsy dress she was wearing became ignited, enveloping the lower part of her body in flames.

CHAPTER XVI

An Arrow Out of the Night THE short Northland day was drawing to a close, when Stane and Helen reached the cabin again. For the first time since he had known it, the man felt that the place had a desolate look; and the feeling was accentuated by the somber woods that formed the background of the cabin.

Things were just as they had left them on their departure, and he drew a little breath of relief. Why he should do so he could not have explained. A few minutes passed, and soon the stove was roaring, filling the cabin with a cheerful glow. Then whilst the girl busied herself with preparations for supper, he went outside to bring in more wood.

On the return journey, as he kicked open the cabin-door, for a second his slightly stooping form was outlined against the light and in that second he caught sounds which caused him to drop the logs and to jump forward, suddenly. He threw the door to burrily and as burrily dropped the bar in place. Helen looked round in surprise.

"What is it?" she asked quickly. "There is some one about," he answered. "I heard the twang of a bowstring and the swish of an arrow over my head. Some one aimed—Ah, there it is!"

He pointed to the wall of the cabin, where an arrow had struck, and still quivered. Going to the wall he dragged it out, and looked at it. It was ivory tipped, and must have been sent with great force. The girl looked at it with eyes that betrayed no alarm, though her face had grown pale.

Calmly, as if hostile Indians were part of the daily program, she continued the preparations for supper, whilst Stane fixed a blanket over the parchment window, which was the one vulnerable point in the cabin. This he ended with the top of a packing case, which the owner of the cabin had improvised for a shelf, and by the time he had finished, supper was almost ready. As they seated themselves at the table, the girl laughed suddenly.

"I suppose we are in a state of alert?"

"I don't know, but I should not be surprised. It is very likely."

He considered a moment, then he said: "We must keep watch and watch through the night. Not that I think there will be any attack. These Northern Indians are wonderfully patient. They will play a waiting game, and in the end make a surprise attack. They will know that now we are on the alert, and I should not be surprised if for the present they have withdrawn altogether."

"You really believe that?"

"Honestly and truly!"

"Then for a moment we are safe."

"Yes, I think so; and you can go to rest with a quiet mind."

"Rest!" laughed the girl. "Do you think I can rest with my heart jumping with excitement? I shall keep the first watch, perhaps after that I shall be sufficiently tired—and bored—to go to sleep."

Stane smiled at her words, and admiration of her courage glowed in his eyes, but what she suggested fitted in well enough with his own desires, and he let her have her way, and himself lay down on his couch as spruce as he was.

A sound of movement interrupted her reverie, and she half-turned as Stane rose from his spruce-couch, as she sat in the glowing light of the stove.

Helen was thinking of the face of Miskodee as she had seen it over her shoulder, when they were departing from the encampment up the lake. She had read there a love for the man who was her own companion, and in the dark, wildly beautiful eyes she had seen the jealousy of an undisciplined nature.

A sound of movement interrupted her reverie, and she half-turned as Stane rose from his spruce-couch, as she sat in the glowing light of the stove.

"You have heard nothing?" he asked.

"Nothing!" she replied.

"I will take the watch now, Miss Yardley, and do you lie down and rest."

HOLIDAY RACE AT LOS ANGELES WAS FATAL TO COUPLE

Sheriff Investigates Accident at Speedway Thursday

Los Angeles, Nov. 30.—The Beverly Hills Speedway was deserted today with its racing career ended after a final Thanksgiving Day contest marred by accidents bringing death to two persons and injury to others.

Harry Hartz, one of 16 drivers entered, was to appear at the sheriff's office today to tell of the accident in which his car killed George S. Wade, Kansas City sportsman, and Russell Hughes, news photographer, and seriously injured Jimmy Lee, mechanic, of Indianapolis.

COSTS $40,000,000 EVERY YEAR TO RUN STATE GOVERNMENT

Governor Small Cites Figures on Taxes for the State

Springfield, Ill., Nov. 30.—Approximately $40,000,000 is required to maintain the Illinois state government each year, Governor Small told a gathering today.

"This amount is exclusive of the money being spent for road work which is to be paid out of the automobile license fees," he said. "Of that amount, $16,000,000 is used for educational purposes, including $5,000,000 a year for the coming school year; $5,000,000 a year to the University of Illinois, and $3,000,000 a year to the state normal schools, vocational and other purposes."

"The state levy during the past two years has been 45 cents on each $100 valuation which will produce about $16,000,000 annually, just enough to pay educational appropriations. The remaining expense of our state government is paid by what we term indirect taxation, such as inheritance tax, corporation tax, etc."

Cut Cook Valuation

"Last year the board of review of Chicago saw fit to reduce the total valuation of Cook County property from $1,731,796,027 to $1,681,530,593, a reduction of $49,565,434, notwithstanding the fact that over $200,000,000 worth of improvements were made last year and the tax commission was powerless under the present law to compel that board to make an honest valuation, and when the board struck from the list of tax payers more than 70,000 names, the state tax commission had no power to put those names back."

"I hold in my hand a tax receipt of last year on forty acres of my farm land. This tax receipt says 'a very small part of the people's taxes are state taxes.' Look over your tax receipts carefully and then answer yourself what makes your taxes higher."

Oklahoma Official Pleads Not Guilty

Oklahoma City, Okla., Nov. 30.—Dr. A. E. Bond of $5000 on each charge, made when the indictments were returned will stand until his trial.

American Delegates to Rum Conflab Leave

Ottawa, Ont., Nov. 30.—Still cloaked in the secrecy that has shrouded them since their arrival, American delegates to the rum smuggling conference between United States and Canadian officials, leave today, after holding a brief meeting this morning.

It is believed each of the plans submitted by the Americans to end liquor smuggling across the border has been thoroughly discussed. The result of these discussions, however, will not be made public until a report has been acted upon by the cabinet council.

Illinois Central System Shows How Railroads Must Spend Money to Save Money

If the railroads are ever to be able to reduce rates without rendering inadequate service to the public, they must be able to rise capital in large sums to keep themselves provided with the most modern facilities to enable them to reduce the cost of operation. If the country is to have cheaper rail transportation, it must first have prosperous railroads. The railroads must spend money in order to save money. The principal source from which they can obtain money for enlargements and improvements is the investing public. Railway earnings, therefore, must be set and kept at a rate sufficient to encourage investment in railway securities on a large scale.

Take the Illinois Central System, for example. Our freight business as measured by the number of tons carried one mile, was 97 per cent greater in 1922 than in 1910. This 97 per cent increase in ton miles was performed with an increase of only 5 per cent in the number of freight train miles.

Longer and heavier trains were run. If the average freight train load had been in 1922 what it was in 1910, an increase in freight train miles of 94 per cent instead of only 5 per cent, would have been required to handle our freight traffic of 1922. This would have meant that the direct cost of freight train operation (wages, fuel, lubricants and other supplies) would have been $21,341,652 greater in 1922 than they actually were.

This substantial saving in the cost of producing our freight service was effected by well-planned expenditures for improvements and extensions to our facilities. Grades were reduced, so that greater tonnage could be handled in a train; old locomotives were replaced by those having greater tractive power; terminal facilities were enlarged; second main track and, in some instances, third main track were added; new yard tracks and new side tracks were laid; modern signals were installed; other improvements were made. Since 1910 the Illinois Central System has expended $225,000,000 in this kind of work.

Efficient and up-to-date facilities must constantly be provided by the railroads to take care of the constantly increasing business resulting from the growth and development of the country. We must not allow the progress of our country to be limited by the lack of transportation facilities. At the same time, the factor of rates must be considered. The railroads must continue to invest heavily in the best cost-reducing facilities, so that they may be enabled to reduce expenses and thus to meet the requirements for the lowest possible rates without impairing their ability to render adequate service.

While our world trade is not a controlling factor in our prosperity, it is of great importance. If we are to compete successfully with other countries in world trade we must do not only a large export business but also an extensive import business. We cannot expect other countries to take our products unless we take theirs.

We should bear in mind that ours is a country of great distances. The extent of our land areas remote from the seaboard is such as necessarily to involve very much longer land hauls than exist in any other country in the world. This is another strong reason why we must take advantage of every opportunity that exists to provide transportation at the lowest possible rates. Our railroads, if they have the necessary public support, stand ready to install the modern facilities which will make it possible to lower rates. This means that they must be freed from threats of premature rate reductions or other unconstructive treatment. Upon this kind of foundation must be based any reasonable hope for lower railway rates.

Constructive criticism and suggestions are invited.

SAFETY

is an important element in selecting the bank with which you transact business. This old and conservative bank stands for all of the essential principles of sound and efficient banking. During more than half a century, the officers of this bank have practiced careful, and judicious methods, which have made it one of the strongest financial institutions of Northern Illinois, and have justified the prestige it now enjoys.

Realizing the large possibility of the small account all conservative business is welcomed.

SAY PEOPLE!

Do you know that during the first eight months of this year 181 manufacturers report they have built 2,689,837 automobiles and trucks.

With the 14,000,000 cars licensed in the United States and over 3,000,000 million cars and trucks being manufactured each year, do you realize what it means to the CITY where the BEMENT POSITIVE DRIVE DIFFERENTIAL IS MADE? Even if only FIVE per-cent of the cars are equipped with it.

Men prominent in the automotive industry, say that in three years EIGHTY per-cent of the cars driven will be equipped with THIS DEVICE. Figure it out how many MEN will be needed to manufacture the DIFFERENTIAL to supply the demand.

A Cancelled Check

A CANCELLED check has been the means of preventing many a lawsuit.

Keep your cancelled checks. They are a record of the money that you have paid out. They show who got it, for the bank will not cash a check until the man to whom it is made out signs his name on the back.

If you pay with cash you have no record. You may have to pay it again, or stand a suit. If you pay by check the cancelled check tells the story.

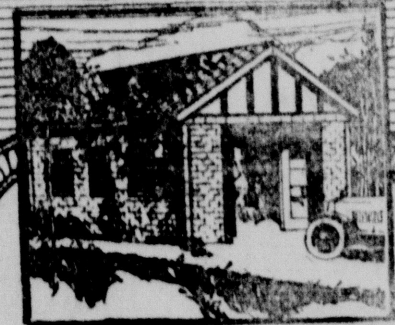

We want to tell you about the advantages of keeping your money in our bank and paying bills by check. Come in and see us about it.

DUNTILE

Builds Better Buildings Cheaper

BETTER buildings because Duntile is a better building unit. It has a hollow center running horizontally, providing the same insulation against heat and cold as the wall of a thermos bottle. It is so dense that dampness cannot creep through. It cannot burn. Age improves it. It places no limitations on the architect or contractor. It has the strength to build a factory or office building and the light weight to build a bungalow or garage.

Cheaper buildings because Duntile cost less than other building materials. They are laid in the wall more rapidly and with one-third the labor of brick or stone. They save at least 30 per cent on mortar. No furring or lath required. And after the building is up there is no upkeep or repair expense.

We will be glad to have you investigate Duntile.
